Hi, everyone! I finally decided that I should get a driving licence and I'm going to start this summer! Why? Because it's much easier to find a job if you have a driving licence, because you can travel on your own and be independent. Also, cars are not that expensive, so one day, who knows? I might buy a car.

The school I chose is very small, but it has a good reputation. There are excellent instructors and the price for the course is reasonable.

The exam is divided into two parts – theoretical and practical. I don't have problems with learning the rules and regulations, but I'm afraid of the practical part. It takes a lot of practice to pass it, and I will only have thirty hours of driving to get some experience.

If you have any advice how to prepare for this exam better, please, let me know in the comments. I'd be grateful for your help!
